I guess the constant bombarding of slide threads and all that stupid fucking bullshit is being quite succesful. Otherwise this board would be talking about more important matters.
One of such important matters (call it interesting, if you don't consider it important enough), is the simultaneous blackout that was experienced in Mexico city and various other states. We also have to keep in mind that just last week the Pfizer vaccines arrived and the campaign to inoculate the first subjects (sorry, i mean, pacients) began.
IT IS VERY IMPORTANT TO NOTE, that this is not something normal in Mexico. The shills will tell you otherwise. Don't listen to them. I am 25 y/o. I've always lived in this country, and something like this has never happened before. Yes, when there's heavy rain the lines sometimes fail, but it's something very focalized, not something that covers the city and other states at the exact same time.
Coincidentally it happened In the weirdest most crazy year of them all.
I think something happened, there was an operation to cover something up. Or maybe to retrieve something? Introduce something? I don't know, i'm not "autistic" enough to figure it out.
Anyways, i would expect a cascade of the good ol' shills to deploy their usual tactics of diminishing and derailing the thread. To all of them, i wish them to be fucked by a nigger infected with aids and covid. Thanks. Tongue my anus a thousand times,fucking bitches.
INB4
>meds, schizo
>who cares about that 3rd world shithole >normal day in Mexico
>the cartels blablablabla
>Mexico has electricity?
>Pedro blablabla
Also, don't listen to other mexicans telling you that this isn't important and that this is normal. Again, IT'S NOT. You see, to the average mexican normie nothing ever happens, and nothing is ever important, as long as they have their bread and circus. Even now, amidst all this bullshit, they refuse to accept weird shit is going on. So yeah, don't listen to them.
That would be all. Thanks.

I think you guys may have just been hit by a major act of sabotage, it would make a ton of sense if you look at the insane amount of 'accidents' going on in critical areas, not to mention the massive Nashville incident that everyone is trying to cover up. Powerful factions are at each others threats right now. Good luck Mexico.

God only knows how many hundreds of thousands of CCP troops are currently bunkered down on U.S. soil, waiting for the signal.

One time these Mexican dudes were working on my driveway and I had a bunch of 2x4s in the way. It started to rain and I asked if they could help me put the boards into the garage real quick. What took place over the next 30 seconds was akin to butter melting on a pile of flapjacks.

They didn't say a word, no quick assignments, not even an acknowledgement — nothing. The one dude just started running pieces inside, and the other one knew to prepare a few pieces at a time for the runner. I swear they didn't even actually understand what I said, they just needed to act. Absolute machines, the whole lot of ya. 16-hour days framing houses in the snow.

My guess is a US/Mexico natural gas supply disruption. You don't have peak load capacity in excess of 7500 MW nationally, the shortfall is too large to make up. No plants are permanently offline right now either, so no permanent damage.You get a lot of natural gas from the US.

I'd look into power plant issues in Juarez in spanish media.

I believe it's to hit AMLO in 2021. If globalists take the white house I only see they will try to get the Mexican globalists Soros puppets to beat AMLO (nationalists) so they will start restauring their power in the whole region. Maybe Venezuela will be next.

If the blackout afected the refrigeration of the vaccines this may be a huge political hit por AMLO reelection

This seems about right. I am twice the age of OP. Here in California has completely corrupt Public Utilities Comission and a grid that is such a failure that it is an ecological disaster, yes most of California fires are power grid failures.

Anyway the linemen I have spoken with pretty much agree with my boomer rants and gave me some interesting input. Its gonna get worse because 2 years ago they were reducing maintenance staff. This year they performed necessary staff reductions due to covid...

If you think Mexico is fucked talk to the linemen. They know what the maintainence logs look like.

Probably schizo shit but just for the sake of argument there was that weird radar glitch from mexico city. Happened once a few years ago and then started happening more frequently this year.

Likely just some fault in the system, but it was always Mexico city's radar, and they clearly never fixed whatever such a fault could even be. I'm no expert on any of this stuff, but it seems odd and possibly somehow connected.

The glitch caused this giant weird looking gear-circle thing people were saying looked like a giant ufo mothership kind. And now when I went looking for a pic of it I see apparently three different weather stations saw it simultaneously. Not just mexico city's radar.

Weird shit.
